Sparkling Pearls :
A water drop on a hydrophobic surface acting as a convex lensa.

Hydrophobic which means "water-fearing", describes the segregation of water and nonpolar substances, which maximizes hydrogen bonding between molecules of water and minimizes the area of contact between water and nonpolar molecules. Acting as a lens, the water drop refracts incoming light to a focal point before the light spreads out again. Surface tension maintains the droplet's spherical shape, creating a convex lens.

Theme Note

The COVID 19 and its repercussions have been reflected in all spheres of the economic as well as social activities at global as well as national level. It has caused widespread devastation of life and livelihood and it is still haunting the economy in several ways. The pandemic has induced several structural changes which have significantly altered the way we work and live. At another level, the pandemic has affected the employment and income opportunities of the poor and vulnerable more, especially in emerging and developing economies. The lasting damage inflicted by the pandemic on these segments is of serious concern for inclusive growth. Where, India's growth imperative remains every bit as urgent, to help recover lost jobs, ameliorate scarred incomes and sustain elevated public debt incurred from the pandemic. The policy making agencies are in a greater trouble to reallocate the economy towards a Stronger, Inclusive and Sustainable Economy creating economic recovery and growth after COVID-19. Against this backdrop, the situation has urged the need to analyse India's growth dynamics during the post COVID scenario Inaugural session was followed by the technical sessions where all the participants had the opportunity to listen to eminent panelists affiliated to reputed academic institutions and research centers from different parts of our country.

The technical sessions started with the presentation of Dr. Dileep Kumar R, Chairman of Indriyam Biologics Pvt. Ltd. Through his presentation, he gave the participants a brief introduction regarding the snake types, classification and its venom. He discussed how snakes prevent prey from escaping, the process of anti -snake venom and its preservation in detail. He articulated the issues related to mismanagement by citing a case study of snake bite occurred in Wayanad district of Kerala where the victim lost her life, in addition to it he had suggested the timely action plan to counter this particular incident.

The second session was handled by Mr. Peter Christopher. He provided a clear-cut distinction between different snake species and their diversified characteristics. Through his presentation he also provides valuable suggestions in confronting snake bite. He also stressed upon various provisions under the wildlife protection Act, 1972 which makes the killing of snake a punishable offense

Second day of the training programme started with a lecture by Miss. R R Senji Laxme, Ph.D. Scholar, IISC, Bangalore. She had discussed the complications of snake bite in the human body and the production of commercial Indian Ant venom borrowed from Tamil Nadu. In her presentation, she stressed that venom will vary between the species as well as within the species and it also varies upon the lifestyle of snakes. She discussed the clinical and economic repercussions by pointing out that the increase in the number of vials would increase the cost of treatment and it will ultimately become a financial burden for the poor families. She also asserted certain solutions for this from her study i.e., through the better understanding of venom and better ant venom manufacturing strategies etc.

After that Dr. VV Pillai, Chief at poison control center and Professor of Forensic Medicine and Toxicology, AIMS, Cochin, Kerala has made his presentation. He mainly focused on the treatment protocols associated with snake envenomation. He started his session with a brief introduction about different types of venomous and non-venomous snakes, its identification and treatment protocols associated with it. He had also provided information about other venomous organisms in our ecology and the risk related to it.

Third day of the training programme, begins with the session was handled by Dr. S R Chandramouli from Pondicherry University. He discussed the major identifying features of venomous and non-venomous snakes. He shared the information and concern that India is a country which is prone to high number of snake bites and related issues every year especially in rural areas.

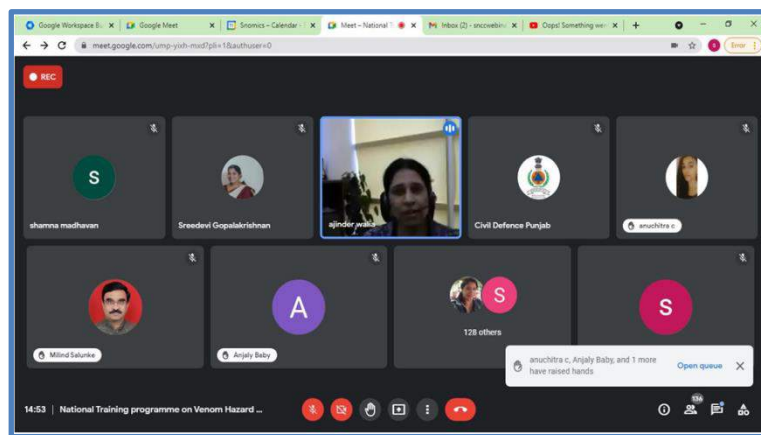

Next session was handled by Dr. Haritha Devi, Research Director, The Tamil Nadu Dr Ambedkar Law University, Chennai. Her lecture mainly focuses on the legal provisions in transmitting the traditional ecological knowledge into knowledge economy and she argues that assigning intellectual property rights will empower the indigenous community. She emphasized the importance of traditional knowledge in the treatment of snake bite and its documentation would be beneficial to mankind and it can also be monetized.

Further, a lecture was given by Dr. P Sakthivel, Assistant Professor from The Tamil Nadu Dr Ambedkar Law University, Chennai. The central point of discussion was on the health, economic and policy perspectives of ant venom initiatives. He opined that the socio-economic conditions of the patients due to snake bite will be reflected on the treatment cost and it will have a long-term impact on the health and ability of survivors at work. He criticized that national health policy, 2017 didn't have a mention about the specificity of venom/ snake bite even in rural areas and specific health issues including treatment of venom.

The final presentation of the training programme was made by Mr. Jose Louise, Deputy Director from World Wildlife Trust of India. The focus of his lecture was to incorporate technology in delivering information regarding snake bites, its nature and mitigation. He introduced a mobile app, 'SARP' for tracing out the incidence of snake bite and related rescue measures.

The three day training programme on “Venom Hazard management and Best Practices” ends with the subsequent valedictory session which includes rapporteurs report and vote of thanks.

40. Two Day Workshop on "Computational Modeling and Drug Design" on at Department of Chemistry, 4-5th April 2018

Computational modeling techniques have long been used for the synthesis of molecular structure and cost-effective (virtual) experimental analysis prior to synthesis. Computational techniques, especially molecular modeling, play a vital role in the drug design process. Ideally, the computational method will be able to predict affinity before a compound is synthesized and hence save enormous time and cost. Although progress was being made in computer aided drug design, the potential for high-throughput screening had begun to take precedence as a means for finding novel therapeutics. The method has the advantage of requiring minimal compound design or prior knowledge, and technologies required to screen large libraries have become more efficient. Most importantly, drug design projects may fail without the efforts of experts in computational modeling. Our department is involved in the identification of phytochemical based leads using computational methods such as Schrodinger software. In this context we organized a workshop under the sponsorship of Kerala State Council for Science, Technology and Environment (KSCSTE) to promote the scientific aspirations of post graduate students, researchers and faculties from various colleges in Kerala. The workshop was also intended to provide a common platform for the delegates to share knowledge and to plan strategies for modern drug research by intellectual interaction with experts in the field.

The workshop started with the registration at 9.00 AM on 4th April 2018. The inauguration function of the program began with an invocation by the students of our college. Dr. Rejikumar, Associate Professor and Principal in Charge presided over the function. Dr. Smitha Sasidhran, Convenor of the workshop welcomed the distinguished guests, invited speakers, delegates, faculties and students to the workshop. Prof. Sabu Thomas, Pro-Vice Chancellor, Mahatma Gandhi University inaugurated the workshop by lighting up the lamp and he also delivered the inaugural address.
