Concept Note

The outbreak of novel corona virus is causing unprecedented havoc on human life across the world which has no differentiation between any region, religion, race or ideology. The COVID induced restrictions in the form of lockdown, social distancing, containment zones, mobility barriers put a standstill in all social and economic life afflicting each and every one, particularly the deprived labourers. To an economy passing through demand depression and high unemployment, the COVID situation would add supply- side stress, accelerating the slow down further and jeopardizing the economic wellbeing of millions of labourers. All spheres of economic activities are facing serious threats to its very survival and revival causing plethora of events revealing massive loss in employment and income to millions of labourers especially in the informal sector. The impact of COVID 19 has had also evident from the gender wise discrimination of labourers in the labour market regarding their availability of work, labour force participation, duration of the work per day etc. In this context, the present webinar on “Covid 19 Pandemic Assessment of Informal Labour Markets” is an eye opening to the existing life, livelihood, wellbeing and economic challenges of the labourers in the broad context of COVID afflicted Indian labour market.
